Parents who smoke and drink should be careful. Young children watch their parents closely. They remember and copy the habits of their mothers and fathers. This is the conclusion of a study made at Dartmouth College in New Hampshire (USA). The researchers asked 120 children aged two to six to role-play a shopping trip. As each child pretended to shop, the researchers observed which things he/she chose to "buy". Of the 120 children, 34 "bought" cigarettes and 74 purchased alcohol. Some of these shoppers were only two years old.

To find the reasons for the children's shopping choices, the researchers gathered information on the habits of each student's parents. They analyzed the data and found that children were 3.9 times more likely to buy cigarettes if their parents smoked.

Parents were not the only influence on the children's shopping choices. Movies also had an effect. Young children who were allowed to watch adult movies were 5 times more likely to choose alcohol.

Madeline Dalton said: "Children were aware of cigarette brands...A six-year-old boy named Bobby identified the brand of cigarettes he was buying as Barclay, but could not identify the brand of his favorite cereal."
